How to get authorised to report and disclose data under REMIT

Under the revised REMIT (2024) and the new Delegated Regulation (2026), IIPs and RRMs need ACER's authorisation to publish or report data to ACER.

Who needs to apply for authorisation, and when?

New entities

From 29 October 2027.

Already registered IIPs and RRMs

Between 29 October 2027 and 28 April 2028.
These entities may continue operating under the existing registration until ACER decides on their authorisation.

How does it work?

1 Apply

Submit your application, supporting documents and testing results (showing that you can report or publish data correctly, using ACER's electronic formats and validation rules).

Already registered IIPs and RRMs may have simplified testing for already proven capabilities.

2 Get ACER's authorisation

ACER checks that your application is complete, assesses compliance and grants or rejects authorisation to report or disclose data.

Once authorised

Keep your system secure: Protect systems and data against unauthorised access, breaches and other security risks.

Ensure data quality: Detect invalid, incomplete, duplicate or inconsistent data before submission. Invalid data must not be reported to ACER or published on an IIP.

Inform clients of any errors: Notify affected clients when their information fails validation checks and ask them to correct it.

Report disruptions quickly: Notify ACER of unplanned downtime, data-quality problems or security incidents, within 24 hours of becoming aware of them.

Flag information requiring clarification (IIPs): Identify inside information reports that require further clarification.

Submit annual reports (RRMs): Provide ACER with an overview summarising your reporting activities.

Keep your authorisation up to date: Ensure that your authorisation remains accurate and reflects your current activities. Notify ACER of any significant changes to your services or operations.

This infographic is simplified. The REMIT Delegated Regulation and ACER's Guidance for IIPs and RRMs should always be consulted.
